T7xe treadmill wins International Design Excellence Award.

COTTAGE GROVE, Wis. — July 31, 2009 — Johnson Health Tech North America, Inc. today announced that the T7xe treadmill was awarded the bronze International Design Excellence Award (IDEA®) for commercial and industrial products by the Industrial Designers Society of America (IDSA).

The IDEA (International Design Excellence Awards) program is the premier international competition honoring design excellence in products, ecodesign, interaction design, packaging, strategy, research and concepts. The IDSA received 1,631 submissions worldwide, up 7.5% from the previous year.

Judging criteria for each entry focuses on eight areas of industrial design excellence: design innovation; benefit to the user; benefit to the client/business; benefit to society; ecological responsibility; appropriate aesthetics and appeal; usability testing; rigor and reliability (Design Research category); and internal factors and methods, implementation (Design Strategy category).

“We are extremely honored to receive such a prestigious award,” said Kent Stevens, executive vice president, sales. “This award is truly a representation of our talented product development team at Matrix and their tireless commitment that went into the T7xe project. Matrix takes pride in our reputation for bringing innovative products to our customers, and the T7xe continues this tradition by changing the way people interact with fitness equipment.”

The BusinessWeek IDEA report hit the stands July 29 with an in-depth analysis of the winners.
